Witnesses Who Remember Accused Wearing a Monstache.

KEY NOT TO BE OPENED

Both Sides Submit Drafts of Instructions to the Jury.

All the counsel for the prisoner and those for the Commonwealth were promptly in their places in the Hustings Court yesterday morning at 10 o'clock, but no progress was made in placing evidence before the jury until about 11. The intervening time was spent by the lawyers in the examination of letters Lillian Madison and a witness named Williams. It was finally agreed that the following statement of facts should be submitted to the jury in lieu of all other testimony on this particular subject i

It is agreed that from December 1, 1884, to March 5, 1885, the deceased and Emmet Williams, of Bath county, Va., wrote each other letters of a loving character, about ten or eleven on each side; that there was no engagement of marriage or Intention of such; that Emmet Williams asserts that he thought it was all in fun, and believed that she meant in the same way, and had reason to so believe from what she had told him; that he had not seen her for a week or two before she left for Richmond in March; that he saw her not oftener than once a month, and then, so far ashe can remember, always in the presence of some one else; that Emmet Williams is mireteen years old to-day (May 30, 1885); that he never knew the decreased before she went to Bath in October, 1884.

Mr. Joel, who had relinquished the stand, was recalled, and Judge Atkins told the jury that he had decided not to have the witness open the key.

Mr. Meredith told counsel for defence that they could cross-examine the witness if they so desired.

Judge Crump asked Mr. Joel about three watches that he had to sell. Witness said watches were sent him to sell within sixty days, and if not sold with-in that time then he (Joel) should take the watches at a stipulated price. He sold two of the watches on the instalment plan. When his creditor came in July he offered him the remaining watch, paid him $16, and offered him the choice of watches in his show-case as indemnification. He had been in business about four years. These RESIDENCES have metallic roofs, and contain seven rooms each, with detached kitchens, water and gas; each fronts 21 feet, with a depth of about 100 feet back to a wide alley.

Their location is certainly desirable, being conveniently close to business, market, and churches, and within one square of the street railway, which fact renders their rental values an excellent income on the investment, as well as a most convenient location for a home.

Nos. 318 and 316 are sold by decree of the Charnery Court-Colonel Thomas J. Evans, commissioner,
